Alumnus wows the crowd at Supima Design Competition

Heber Sanchez ’09, a freelance designer for Akademiks, a jeans and urban clothing designer, was one of six finalists in the third annual Supima Design Competition in January at the Times Center in New York City, a contest regarded as a showcase for promising young designers. This year’s competition began in October 2009 with an open call that attracted dozens of entrants. The fashion blog Stylelist.com said a strapless gown with a corseted bodice and full skirt designed by Sanchez proved to be “the fan favorite” from “the amount of cheers and applause heard.”
